IRONSIDE was the first major sailing vessel built of iron in the United Kingdom, and probably the first built in the world. She was preceded by at least one iron ketch, the GOLIATH, built at Liverpool in 1836. Steamers had been built of iron in Great Britain as early as 1821, and canal boats as early as 1787.

HELEN A. MILLER

HISTORY: Wood full-rigged ship, 510 tons. Built at Baltimore, Maryland in 1851. Operated as a Baltimore-New Orleans packet by John Henderson & Co. Was run ashore in a leaky condition, in San Carlos Bay, East Falkland, in August 1859, while on a passage from Boston to San Francisco.

DESCRIPTION: The wreck lies close to the beach in the second cove inside the south headland of the Bay. When examined from the air in 1976, it appeared to consist of the intact lower hull, to the turn of the bilge or higher. San Carlos Bay was the scene of the British landings in May 1982.
